Focus on

- Youth employment

According to the latest estimates there will be 74.2 million unemployed youth aged 15 to 24 in 2013, an increase of 3.8 million since 2007. Political commitment and innovative approaches are needed.
- Social Protection

Social protection programmes can act as stabilizers mitigating the impact of economic crises on labour markets while contributing to maintaining social cohesion and stimulating aggregate demand.
- Post-2015 Development Agenda

The ILO calls for job creation and social protection to be included in the list of Development Goals which will be drawn up by the United Nations after the target date for achieving the Millennium Development Goals passes in 2015.
